Light, fun, holiday paranormal novella

By Brooke Bumgardner

Verity communicates with ghosts. Matthew Jackson, a Civil War era ghost, asks her to do a favor for him – somehow retrieve the family heirloom necklace his mother promised he could have for his bride. He feels he cannot enter his family home, since his mother disowned him when he joined the Union army. Now, in the after-life, Matthew has met someone and wants to ask for her hand – but he needs the necklace to do so. Verity needs help from Frankie (the ghost she's stuck with) to be able to see the spirits at the Jackson home and try to get the necklace.

This was a light, fun read with a bit of a holiday tone to it. The Jacksons are throwing their annual Christmas party, and Verity offers to waitress it for her friend who is catering. This gets her into the house, but she's not sure what will happen once she is in there. I enjoyed the story. I read it in one sitting and it was a quick, easy read. If you enjoy this series, then you will definitely enjoy this fun installment.

A Centuries Old Engagement Gift!

By Patricia LeMonde

In, Ghost Of A Chance, Angie Fox, writes a very heart felt Christmas story!

Verity is visited by her new friend, a Union Soldier ghost, Matthew Jackson, to ask her to retrieve a necklace his mother promised to him for an engagement gift, when he finds the love of his life! Little did he know that it would happen when he has crossed over and falls in love with Josephine, another ghost friend of Verity's! Luckily, since his mother and the necklace are also on the other side, it can be retrieved! The problem is, his mother disowned him, and said never to step foot in their home again, because he joined the Union Army!

Verity wants to help her friend, but going to the Jackson annual Christmas party, always brings problems! Verity's friend invites her to help her serve as she caters the party! Verity goes with her resident ghost, Frankie, to help her see what's really going on in the house, besides a Christmas party! Verity finds Matthew's mother in an angry fit, tripping a server, and knocking trays on the floor, because she's stuck in the middle of a funeral! Verity steps in quickly to save her friend's catering company, and help his mother realize her son is standing outside the window! A mother's love is eternal and their reconnecting is a Christmas gift of the century!! Another must read from Angie Fox!

A great Christmas gift from Angie!

By Julie E

A wonderful Christmas short from Angie Fox. This new installment for the Verity Long fan group is a keeper! Verity is back in the ghost hunting business with her side-kick gangster Frankie. This time her new friend Matthew Jackson, a ghost from the civil war, needs Verity to get a gift for his new ghost girlfriend, Josephine for Christmas. All sounds fairly easy except Verity not only has to find access to the Jackson family estate on the busiest night, the annual Christmas party, she has to retrieve the necklace from Matthew's deceased mother. Oh and Matthew hasn't spoken to his mother since she disowned him when he joined the Union Army during the civil war. Not too much for our girl to do.

An excellent story, just wished it was longer as I love these characters. I did miss not having Verity's hunky boyfriend, Deputy Ellis in the picture, but we do have a great time with Matthew & Lauralee, Verity's best friend. Doesn't help that Lauralee doesn't know about Verity's secret life, but that makes the story more fun, trying to talk to 'live' people & the 'dead' at the same time. Lol

Always a joy to read an Angie Fox book and this one won't disappoint her fans.
