Really neat packaging and fun subject

By Amazon Customer

This is a totally different and interesting concept. This is like a coffee table book of different reusable tote bag designs by artists all over the world. The author asked designers to submit their work by way of his website and he included interesting information on the designers, their county, and information about what they like to design, or what inspires them, etc. The submissions are cool and so are the designs. Some bags are more "plain" while others are wildly colorful. Many have interesting phrases written on them while others drew their designs for specific audiences. It's just really neat to look at all the bags and read about the people who made them.

The coolest thing is that the author packaged the book inside a functional, reusable tote bag. You can see some of the bag designs by going to the blog listed above.
